The Great Park is a planned 1,347 acre park on the site of the former El Toro Marine Corps Air Station in Irvine, California. When completed, it will be larger than New York's Central Park. The Plan will provide a wide array of active and passive uses, including a 2.5 mile canyon and lake, miles of walking and biking trails, a cultural terrace, Orange County's largest sports park, a botanical garden, and a tethered helium observation balloon that will be an icon for the Great Park. More than 3,885 of the 4,700 acres will be dedicated to open space, education, and other public uses. Surrounding the Park, and helping to pay for it, will be over 3600 housing units and about 3 million square feet of commercial/office/industrial space built by the Lennar Corporation, a developer which bought the former Base from the Department of the Navy for $650 million with the requirement that it would deed substantial portions for park use and pay millions of dollars in community improvements. The overall cost of the Great Park is estimated at $1.2 billion.
