Location

Building C Corvinus University of Budapest

Budapest, Közraktár utca. 4-6, 1093

How to get there by public transport

1. Take the subway line M4 to station Fővám tér

2. After coming up with the escalator, turn sharp right and walk up towards Corvinus University of Budapest
3. Follow the red arrow towards Building C

Using public transport in Budapest is safe and reliable.

For your stay, we suggest you to buy a 72 hour Budapest-travelcard for 5500 HUF. Tickets are available from ticket machines near various public transport stops, and also from smart phone app (see below).

- More information: <https://bkk.hu/en/tickets-and-passes/prices/>

You can use the BudapestGO app to buy and present the travelcard for inspectors.

Getting to Budapest: Budapest is well connected with frequent train and airliner services to the Western part of Europe. As of now, there is no direct flight connection to the United States but major hubs in Europe (London, Paris, Frankfurt, Zürich, Amsterdam etc.) are well served. Alternatively, you may fly to Vienna and use the hourly train service to Budapest. The airport of Budapest is situated in the southeast corner of the city and served by either taxis (€25-30) or the rapid bus line 100E that connects it with the centre (special ticket required, about €6).

Accommodation: There is plenty of possibilities in central Budapest on both sides of the river. For practical reasons, we suggest you stay within the circle Grand Boulevard ("Nagykörút", easily recognisable by the routes of tramway lines 4 and 6 in Pest) and the similar area in Buda (with the same tramway lines + line 61). Though there is no dangerous parts of the inner city, some may feel uncomfortable in the vicinity of Mátyás Square in District 8, and the hustle and bustle of partygoers of inner District 7 around Klauzál Square may attract, but may also discourage, some.
